ABSTRACT

BRIDGING EUROPE (FEBRUARY 2017)

Bridging Europe is an Athens-based European think-tank founded in 2014 by Dimitris Rapidis to properly inform the European and global public about the Greek Crisis in Eurozone, and to launch a series of opinion polls and political research on changes in the developing economy of Greece. Bridging Europe prepares policy briefs and thematic working papers, provides advisory and consulting services, executes social media campaigns and relevant communication services, and designs and conducts opinion polling. It launches and participates in conferences and roundtable discussions. In addition to its staff, Bridging Europe uses a network of experts for long or short-term assignments as temporary consultants and assistants on a project basis.
